Results

For individual simulation tour the results will be posted 3 weeks after the scheduled week due to Covid affecting some players to play their round each week. These dates can be found on the document "Individual simulation Tour Covid Policies and Schedule". It is important that each member keeps up to date on these specific details.

X Factor 2021 individual Simulation Tour HDCP and points Information

Standings will be calculated similar to the FedEx cup points on the PGA tour. Each week will produce its own set of points based off the game play and standings. With first place always receiving the most points for the week and going through all the way to last place. You will always receive points for submitting a score. These points will be kept for 7 weeks and then a 2-week playoff will commence to finalize the standings of the entire league. Each division will have their own point system.

For returning members from fall 2020, your handicap will be carried over. Again, Throughout the season we will be handicapping players based on the best round of every 3 scores posted (33%). This is different to Golf Canada in which takes the best 10/20 scores (50%). The reason being is that Simulator golf will see drastic changes between rounds and that there are only 9 rounds during the season. The Max Handicap for Woods division will be 36.

And for Henderson division the max will be 40.4

For new members, we will use a handicap you give us (golf Canada is preferred). Then we will take your first 2 weeks to add and reference your handicap. This will be calculated before the February 28th results of week 1 are posted. We will be taking 80% of the players established handicap. The players handicap will be calculated to the courses slope/rating for that week's game. Keep in mind we play different courses every week which will change how many strokes you get on each course.

All Players will be subject to a handicap adjustment if deemed necessary. If there are further questions on how handicaps are produced, please email league@xfactorindoorgolf.com .
